

Crosswalk Safety for Kids' sake!

Parents often think their children can handle traffic safety by themselves before they are actually ready. To reduce the likelihood of injury we want children to learn the following:

- They should not assume that the driver sees them, even if they see the driver.
- Children younger than 10 should never cross the street alone.
- They should never play in the street.
- They should always try to walk on paths or sidewalks. If there are no sidewalks or paths they should walk facing the street traffic.
- They should look both ways for danger before and while crossing the street.
- They should walk, not run, into the street.
- They should wear bright colors or reflective materials for greater visibility.
